Percy Cotter has been appointed as regular organist at the First Presbyterian church, filling the place occupied by the late Miss Eleanor Colony. In the absence of Mrs. T. H. Galloway her work is in charge of Miss Willson.

Mrs. E. E. Dennison and daughters, Mrs. A. J. Anderson and Miss Irene Dennison, left yesterday for Newport, where they will remain for two weeks or more. Mr. Dennison leaving the same day for Aberdeen, South Dakota, where he has business interests. He will probably be gone until fall.

Miss Dennison will spend several weeks before her return to Salem as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Mary McCormack, in Lebanon, and will also visit her cousin, Mrs. Elmer J. Lally, in Corvallis. Mr. and Mrs. Lally were former Salem residents. Mr. Lally being recently appointed Wells-Fargo agent in the university city.

A very lovely likeness of Miss Alice Skiff appears on the musical page of Sunday's Oregonian, and is accompanied by the following interesting item: "Miss Alice Irene Skiff, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Will Skiff, of Salem, although only 15 years old, is an accomplished pianist and has won laurels as a singer. She was one of the vocalists at the recent meeting of the Linn County Pioneer association and was highly complimented for the quality and sweetness of her voice. Miss Skiff is a granddaughter of the late Rev. C. C. Sperry, one of Oregon's earliest Baptist ministers. She is a student of the Salem high school, her vocal instructor being Dan F. Langerberg."

Dr. Bertha Stewart, who lectured to the mothers and teachers of Salem at Kimball college today, was entertained as the guest of Mrs. E. W. Moreland.

Miss Beulah Pressnell, Miss Daisy Carter, Miss Gladys Pemberton and Miss Bessie Shinn, accompanied by Mrs. Shinn, formed a party leaving yesterday for Newport. They have secured a cottage and will remain for a week or more.

Miss Eva Grace Craig became the bride of Victor L. Swartz at a quiet wedding Sunday morning, which took place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Craig, 1975 Broadway.

Rev. F. T. Porter, of the First Christian church, performed the ceremony at 10 o'clock.

There were no attendants and only relatives of the two families were present.

Mrs. Swartz has been a popular clerk at the Chicago Store for some time, coming here two years ago with her parents from New Albany, Indiana.

They left Monday morning for Hoquiam, Wash., where they will reside, having a new home awaiting them.

Friday night the young women of the Loyal Daughters class of the Christian church, of which Miss Craig was a member, and a number of girl friends, complimented her with a miscellaneous shower.

Those present were: Miss Olive Gusto, Miss Wilda Sigmond, Miss Ruth Johnson, Miss Florence Martin, Miss Hazel Prince, Miss May Ward, Miss Hazel Tucker, Miss Lucille Tucker, Miss Hazel Fleener, Miss Elsie Korb, Miss Marnie Korb, Miss Fay Ritchie, and Mrs. J. Swartz.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brown were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Taom in Jefferson, making the trip in their new car.

Sunday excursions to Newport are gaining in popularity, the last week-end witnessing the largest Sunday excursions that have taken place this season, the sales for that day being nearly 100.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic B. Thiesen were weekend guests of Mrs. Asahel Bush at the Breakers, Washington.

A party of Salem motorists joined a number of Jefferson friends Sunday, together enjoying an outing and picnic dinner at the beautiful picnic grounds at Jefferson. Salem people who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hazard, Mrs. Follich and daughters, Mary and Doris; Mr. and Mrs. L. Lickel and daughter, Silvia; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Clearwater, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. John Cornforth; those from Jefferson being Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Pease, two sons and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Reed and daughter Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Tucker, Miss Rowland, Mrs. Fred Weed, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Aupperle and John A. Aupperle.

Misses Hattie and Fannie Morrison have returned from a two weeks' outing at Newport.

Miss Lois Watt, of Portland, who has been the house guest of Mrs. A. F. Marcus, has returned to her home.

Mrs. Marcus and daughters, Mabel, Helen and Marjorie, spent the week-end with friends in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen McDonald spent the week-end in Portland the guests of Mrs. McDonald's mother, Mrs. Crawford.

Motoring to Corvallis Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. G. Stolz, Mrs. Lenta Westcott, Mrs. A. E. Denmore and Mrs. Ida Babcock were entertained as guests for the day of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Crawford, former Salem residents.

Salem friends will be glad to learn that Mrs. Crawford, who suffered a severe injury last fall, is sufficiently recovered to be about with the assistance of crutches, and that her complete restoration to health is expected.

The Salem party made their trip through Polk county, returning by way of Albany.

Miss Carolyn Diek asked a number of her girl friends to her home Friday afternoon, when she entertained at a pretty tea party, complimenting Miss Mildred Wiggins of Toppenish, Wash., and Miss Pauline Robertson of Newberg.

The guests were entertained on the attractive lawn, where the tea tables were arranged. A color effect of green was carried out both in decorations and refreshments, adding a cool suggestion particularly pleasing on the summery afternoon.

Besides the hour guests were Miss Margaret Rodgers, Miss Ila Spaulding, Miss Marjorie Kay and Miss Virginia Fordyce.

Mrs. W. L. Robinson and daughter, Miss Pauline Robinson, who have been the house guest of Mrs. Charles K. Spaulding and Miss Ila Spaulding, have returned to their home in Newberg.

Mrs. A. C. DeVoe and her children, Gertrude and Virgil, are home from a three weeks' visit with relatives at Yoncolla, Douglas county. They were accompanied home by Mrs. DeVoe's niece, Miss Alice Mortenson, who will visit here several weeks.

Daddy's Bedtime

The Sleepy

Story—

White

Water Lily

"See, the water lily has gone to sleep."

"KIDDIES, I'm going to tell you a 'sleepy' story tonight. Can you cheat the sandman long enough to hear it?"

"Yes!" shouted the children, though the very word "sleepy" made them cuddle closer to daddy's side on the big wide sofa.

"It's about the sleepy white water lily."

"Do flowers really sleep, daddy, or is it a make believe story?" asked Jack.

"It's a make believe story, babies, but it is founded on the fact that flowers do close their pretty petals and go right straight off to sleep just like you."

"Which ones are they?" asked Evelyn, sitting up straight, her eyes growing very bright.

"Oh, there are heaps of them," said daddy. "There is the daisy, which opens at sunrise and closes at sunset—that's why it's called daisy, or 'day's eye'—the dandelion, the scarlet pimpernel and heaps more, but I'll tell you to night about the sleepy white water lily that grew so sleepy that she just couldn't keep awake even to be admired."

Jack giggled, but daddy hushed him up and hurriedly continued his story.

"She had paddled all day on her great green lily pad boat, playing with the minnows that would swim daintily around her. Then she would gaze up at her golden head at the great sparkling sun away up in the blue sky and flit her white skirts. You see, this was the first day her petals had been unfolded, and it was a great day for the white water lily."

"Then a man and a girl came paddling by her lily pad boat and began to exclaim about the beauty of the lily, which made the white water lily like herself more than ever."

"But, alas and alack, just then her petals began to close. She tried with all her might to keep them open just like you kiddies try to keep your eyes open sometimes at night when they just won't. But in spite of her efforts her petals closed and closed until they were all folded round by a pretty green cloak. Then she heard the girl say: 'Oh, it must be 4 o'clock! See, the water lily has gone fast asleep!'"

"The white water lily knew no more until she felt the sun shining in her face about 7 o'clock the next morning."

"What a pretty story!" cried Jack and Evelyn as they jumped down from the sofa and pattered away to bed.

As Jack was tucked into his little bed by mother and was drifting off to slumberland he arose sleepily and said, "Mother, I think I like stories that are what daddy calls 'founded on fact.'"

MME. CAILLAUX, A LITTLE BOURGEOISIE, ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

The trial of Mme. Caillaux for the murder of Mr. Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, is not the great trial expected, not the great trial heralded by all the newspapers.

After the first hearing it is evidently an affair only mediocresly sensational, in which all the actors seem dwarfed.

The newspapers had presented Mme. Caillaux either as a monster of perfidy or a heroine of devotion. At the hearing there stood only a little bourgeois, hesitant and anxious, who cannot understand how she killed the journalist and who asserts that it was contrary to all her principles and all her habits.

She was very simply clad with a black corsage open to show a black tulle collar and a black straw hat. Her hair is very beautiful, but her fair color does not seem authentic. Her eyes are small and very much alive.

In the Assize Court before a crowd of barristers and many journalists Mme. Caillaux told how she shot Mr. Calmette because he published personal letters that had nothing to do with politics; she told of how she went to the editor's office and while there lost her head, and, with an automatic pistol, killed the man who had defamed her husband. Me. Fernand Labori is counsel for Mme. Caillaux.
